Minimum Wage Increases Effective July 1, 2017

Workers, employers and businesses operating in Pasadena are reminded that increases to local minimum wages take effect July 1, 2017. This is year two of the City's minimum wage ordinance that began last year.

As of July 1, 2017, employers with 26 or more employees must pay a minimum of $12 per hour. For employers with 25 or fewer employees, the minimum wage is $10.50 per hour.

The City's ordinance is a multi-phase, multi-year approach to elevating the minimum wage to $15 per hour by 2020.

For updated information from the City, go to www.cityofpasadena.net/MinimumWage. This website also has the formal notices available in several languages that can be printed and displayed for employees to read.

Mr. Jon Pollard, Code Compliance Manager for the Planning Department's Code Enforcement Division, oversees the City's Minimum Wage Ordinance program, including compliance and outreach. He can be reached at jpollard@cityofpasadena.net.

For any complaints, workers can contact the City via the Citizen Service Center, by phone at (626) 744-7311 or www.cityofpasadena.net/citizen-service-center. Additional information will be available at the consumer kiosk stations at the Jackie Robinson Community Center, 1020 N. Fair Oaks Ave., and the Villa-Parke Community Center, 363 E. Villa St. The online compliant form is available at www.cityofpasadena.net/Planning/MinimumWageComplaintForm.

Anyone who wishes to file a complaint should provide as much specific documentation as possible, including paystubs that show hourly wages paid. Anonymous complaints can be received, but code enforcement and compliance could be limited.

Pasadena's local ordinance was approved prior to the state law and the state law did not specifically prohibit local jurisdictions from passing local minimum wage ordinances. As a result, companies and businesses with employees working in Pasadena must comply with the City's ordinance whenever the local, municipal law exceeds the standards of the state law. Additional increases are scheduled to occur at the same time in 2018.

Fight the Bite; Mosquito Awareness Info

Residents are reminded to "Fight the Bite" and protect themselves and their families against mosquitoes, at home, at work and while on vacation. There have been no reports of locally acquired mosquito-borne diseases in Pasadena in 2017. However, recent rainfall may have created small hidden pockets of standing water around homes that can serve as inviting environments for mosquitoes to lay eggs.

Pasadena Public Health Department officials urge everyone to eliminate mosquito breeding grounds and to follow some common sense tips to avoid being bitten.

The primary mode of disease transmission from mosquitoes is through the bite of an infected mosquito. Humans who contract mosquito-borne viruses, including Zika, West Nile, Chikungunya and Dengue, may develop serious health illness.

- Empty, scrub clean, turn over, cover or just throw out unused items outdoors that hold water, such as tires, buckets, planters, toys, pools, birdbaths, flowerpots, or trash containers.
- Keep swimming pool water clean, sanitized, and filtered.
- Wear insect repellants containing DEET.
- Wear long-sleeved shirts and long pants when outdoors if weather permits, especially at dawn or dusk or anytime you are where mosquitoes might be present.
- Check window and door screens for holes, repair or replace.
- When traveling choose lodging that has air conditioning and screens.

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) recommends that pregnant women (or women considering getting pregnant) should avoid travel to areas with ongoing Zika virus transmission, including Latin America and the Caribbean, particularly Mexico and Puerto Rico. For more on the CDC's travel advisories, please visit <https://wwwnc.cdc.gov/travel/page/zika-information>.

If you return from an affected region and experience fever with joint pain or rash within two weeks following your return, contact your medical provider and discuss where you traveled. For more information on mosquito-borne diseases and prevention, visit <https://www.cdc.gov/zika/>.

Community Health Report Available

The 2016 "Community Health Needs Assessment of Greater Pasadena" (CHNA) is now available online for use as a valuable data resource tool for residents, decision makers, health care providers and other stakeholders when examining the overall health of the Pasadena area.

Since 1992, the Pasadena Public Health Department (PPHD) has published its community health reports under the title of the "Pasadena/Altadena Quality of Life Index." Now, and into the future, the report is retitled to more accurately reflect its content and purpose. The report is available online at www.healthypasadena.org.

The PPHD, www.cityofpasadena.net/PublicHealth and Huntington Hospital, www.huntingtonhospital.org, collaboratively worked together to complete the report on the current health status and needs of residents in the Greater Pasadena, including Pasadena, Altadena, South Pasadena and San Marino.

Now that the report is published, PPHD later this year will announce details on a community-wide effort to evaluate, prioritize and plan for health improvements based on the report's findings.
