Comments	Greetings Commission members and staff: The solid travertine cladding is a distinct feature that merits preservation. It is quite surprising that no objections are being made about the effective demolition of this unique feature. What is proposed does not seem a revitalization but a transformation toward the banal.. If light and air and extensive fenestration is required, as the applicant stated, then why not significantly enlarge and open up the currently proposed small interior courtyard to accommodate this need? Where is the balance between preserving square footage vs. preserving the essence of its design? Once gone, it's gone for good.
