It is disheartening that it appears little of substance has been done to address the over-scale mass of this project and the “forever” negative impacts it will have such as traffic, degradation of one of the most defining, significant and intact historic blocks in Old Pasadena.

These developers don’t even have a good track record with their existing historic building here.

I hope the DC will step up to it’s core values and mission and bring this project into a more responsible, harmonious design in mass and scale befitting the site and surrounding historic assets and community.

There is only one chance to get it right and it isn’t there yet.

Regards,

Henry Golas
