Rose Bowl Aquatics Center

Co-Chair, 25th Anniversary Celebration & Fundraiser
2014 – 2015

Along with my wife and Co-Chair, Kate Amsbry, we created the theme, organized and executed the RBAC's 25th Anniversary Gala that featured over 600 guests and was the most financially successful event of its kind to date. Our theme "Triumph over Adversity" featured KCBS Sports Anchor Jim Hill as our Master of Ceremonies and we honored a diverse group of aquatic heroes. Dr. Sammy Lee, age 95 at the time of the event, was the first Japanese American to win two Olympic Gold Medals in Diving for the USA (despite overcoming incredible discrimination and obstacles to his training at Brookside Park - former pool at the site at of today's Rose Bowl Aquatic's Center); and comedian Louie Anderson, through his role in ABC-TV's SPLASH (diving TV show that shot at the RBAC) overcame the fear of swimming and diving as a 400+ lb. man and inspired thousands of people to learn to swim and opened up a game-changing national discussion about body positivity.

Application for Appointment to the NORTHWEST COMMISSION

“How would you help achieve these objectives and goals? What special qualities would you bring?”

I am proud to be a founding board member of Civitas, a local group of diverse people who want to make a positive difference in the community. This is the perfect group for me as I so passionately want to be part of positive change in my community. I care deeply about my neighbors, especially the neighbors that have been oppressed and are limited in their ability to advocate for themselves. It's this passion that inspired my wife and I to get involved with James Madison Elementary School - first as a 'friendship' with the school and then a relationship that evolved into so much more once we discovered how much difference a little money, compassion and caring could make. Someone asked me if we had "adopted a school" and I answered an emphatic "NO" - I abhorred that idea of my wife and I 'adopting' these kids. These kids came from loving families, just families with different circumstances, fewer resources, fewer opportunities, less access to learning opportunities. They did not to be 'adopted'. They just needed a friend. Our friendship evolved into a nonprofit called Friends of Madison. In the 3+ years that Kate and I have worked with the Madison teachers and staff, the Madison families and kids, Reading Partners doing one-on-one reading tutoring and developed and implemented attendance incentive programs that have helped return hundreds of thousands of dollars in funding back to the school, we deepened our friendship. It will be a lifelong friendship with this school and this school community. We discovered how passion, compassion, kindness, perseverance and resilience help bring communities together.

If I am chosen as a member of the Northwest Commission, I will bring the experience and life lessons learned from my 30+ year successful business career in advertising and broadcasting. My experience successfully negotiating over $1.5 billion dollars in media transactions; organizing, producing and selling hundreds of concerts and large scale, revenue producing events; working with the big egos of top name on-air talent and music artists; managing large sales staffs and successfully inspiring and motivating them to perform at their highest level; working with thousands of different business owners in scores of different industries and the knowledge I gained as I helped them increase their revenue; and managing topline revenue budgets upward of $300,000,000. If I am selected, I will bring my experience running my own business; the skills I developed by managing an entire business; business development, relationship building, collaborating and compromising. If I am selected, I will bring my experience as an entrepreneur - working quickly, with limited resources, creating value out of an idea and bringing that idea to market and monetizing it within a short time frame. If this Council believes I am the right person to join this legislative body I will bring a work ethic like no other, a love for my neighbors, a commitment for diversity - diversity of all kinds - cultural, racial, gender, gender identification, diversity of experience and thought. I will bring an open mind, an ability and willingness to listen. I will bring a reverence for the institution, a healthy respect for the law, the process and protocols that govern the way that the City operates. If I am selected, I will bring the highest level of integrity to my work and demonstrate the highest moral character in my words, deeds and actions. If I am selected, I will work hard every day to support to efforts of my fellow members of the Northwest Commission and the work of the City Council, the Mayor and the work of the City Staff.

Application for Appointment to the NORTHWEST COUNCIL

“What specifically in your background, training or interests qualifies you as an appointee?”

My wife, Kate and I moved our family to Pasadena in 2003. We raised our two sons here, met and developed our lifelong friends and quickly fell in love with the history, architecture, outdoor activities, natural beauty, the diversity and most of all the people. We both became very involved in our kid’s activities, like many parents who are able, and before long I was coaching multiple sports – my favorite being the Brotherhood sports run by the late Victor McClintock. The more families and kids we met, the more we were in love with Pasadena – and after several moves early in our marriage, we knew Pasadena was “home”, we were not planning on moving anywhere ever again.

My career has been mostly in advertising sales. Selling radio advertising time, concerts and events and managing radio stations and large teams of salespeople. I have worked hard, had some good fortune and mostly been smart enough to have worked for some tremendous people - people who took an interest in my success and invested time in mentoring me. When I was young, I thought I would just out work everyone and that works, to a point. As I matured in my career, listened to the advice of my mentors, and began applying that advice, I began experiencing greater professional success, better results in my personal endeavors and greater harmony in my relationships. I shifted my outlook from ‘inward’ - focused solely on my personal achievements to ‘outward’, with a greater focus on how I could help others. I became interested in the concept and benefit of servant leadership - empathy, listening, being more self-aware, building community. These principles have benefited me greatly.

In my personal life I have always been adventurous, a thrill-seeker and keen to take on a new challenge. My wife says I like to “run towards the fire”. I have conquered many personal challenges - I have completed over 40 triathlons, I have completed an Ironman triathlon (Ironman Canada), 2 marathons, 9 half marathons, multiple 100-mile bike races and long-distance open water ocean swims. I am an avid snow skier and volunteered for several years as a National Ski Patrol. I am a licensed private pilot; I have sky dived in the Swiss Alps and hang glided in Rio. I am currently training to get my paragliding certificate. I am a scuba diver and a sailor. I have climbed Mt Whitney. And much more. I love a challenge and I love to prove to myself (overt and over again), that anything is possible. This is what we tell the kids at Madison Elementary - “anything is possible”. This is the message I would take with me to the District 5 residents and this is the spirit with which I would approach all of my work with fellow Councilmembers. Anything is possible!

In my work at the Rose Bowl Aquatics Center, when I speak to members of the community about the mission of the Center and my vision for the future, I always talk about four principles: Equity, Access, Opportunity and Inclusion. When I talk to neighbors in my community about the education nonprofit my wife and I founded I talk about the same four principles: Equity, Access, Opportunity and Inclusion. The four principles are of great interest to me - for any great City to be truly great, it's leaders must focus on Equity, Access, Opportunity and Inclusion for all its residents.

I am a proud resident of District 5. My wife and I wanted to live in and raise our children in a diverse community and we will be forever thankful that we moved to 1006 North Oakland Avenue - the neighborhood called Orange Heights. It is a wonderfully diverse neighborhood. We have also been privileged to have been able to send our children to some of the best schools in the country: St. Marks Elementary School (1st through 6th grades), Polytechnic School (7th through 12th grades) and now our younger son Tom is a junior at Amherst College and our older son a graduate student at Tufts University. They benefitted greatly from both their neighborhood friends and school friends and that unique Pasadena experience where many kids on the same street all go to different schools.

This unique Pasadena experience opened up my eyes to the inequities in Pasadena, the educational inequities and the differences in the Districts. There are 'different Pasadena's' within our same great City. I believe this experience uniquely qualifies me to collaborate with the Councilmembers in the different Districts.

Through my career I have been a negotiator, a problem solver and tasked with getting things done. Through my community work I have been a collaborator and a consensus builder. As a resident that has existed in several of the 'different Pasadena's', I have a keen understanding of the City, its neighborhoods and issues and after 18 years of active civic involvement, I have friends and acquaintances across the entire town.

I love this town. My interest is contributing at the highest level to improving the quality of life for every Pasadena resident, to faithfully advocate for the residents and businesses of District 5, to collaborate with these community members, City staff and fellow Councilmembers to solve urgent issues like homelessness, affordable housing, sensible development, gender equity, policing, creating better job opportunities, safer streets, educational equity, gang violence and more. I am ready to go to work for my neighbors in District 5 and every resident of Pasadena.
