Thank you for the response. I will discuss this with them. As to that property I did see the zoning already but I was trying to determine if the city had allowed people to occupy it anyway under a grandfathering clause.

Good afternoon Mr. Patterson,

The City met with two representatives for each of the six top-scoring applicants last week and we asked for all questions to be submitted via the two representatives only. For transparency purposes, please contact your client to have them submit all questions to us directly.

Regarding 60 S. California, you can access building permit records via the link below, but it appears that we do not have any recent records. There are some records from 2009 for commercial use:

You can also access our zoning map via the link below:

Good morning,

I am working for Harvest which was one of your recent entities that was awarded a license so I stopped in to ask a few questions as there is just so few properties that appear to work. My first question is has any entity filed yet and if so in what district? The other question I have is in regards to one property. What I am trying to find out is if 60 S. California is being used as residential housing? It was obviously one at some time years ago and if it still is then it knocks out many possible properties.

Thank you,

Dave
