Mary Coin author Marisa Silver kicks off library's 1930's American Dust Bowl commemoration

Pasadena Public Library will host author Marisa Silver on Thursday, September 4 at Central Library's Donald R. Wright Auditorium, 285 E. Walnut St. as part of Dust, Drought and Dreams Gone Dry, a month long commemoration of the 1930s American Dust Bowl this September. This free event begins with a reception at 6 p.m. followed by the program at 7 p.m.

Silver will discuss her book, Mary Coin. In this novel, her first since The God of War, critically acclaimed author Marisa Silver takes Dorothea Lange's "Migrant Mother" photograph as inspiration for a breathtaking reinvention—a story of two women, one famous and one forgotten, and of the remarkable legacy of their chance encounter.

In 1936, a young mother resting by the side of a road in Central California is spontaneously photographed by a woman documenting the migrant laborers who have taken to America's farms in search of work. Little personal information is exchanged, and neither woman has any way of knowing that they have produced what will become the most iconic image of the Great Depression.

Three vibrant characters anchor the narrative of Mary Coin. Mary, the migrant mother herself, who emerges as a woman with deep reserves of courage and nerve, with private passions and carefully-guarded secrets. Vera Dare, the photographer wrestling with creative ambition who makes the choice to leave her children in order to pursue her work. And Walker Dodge, a present-day professor of cultural history, who discovers a family mystery embedded in the picture. In luminous, exquisitely rendered prose, Silver creates an extraordinary tale from a brief moment in history, and reminds us that although a great photograph can capture the essence of a moment, it only scratches the surface of a life.

Central Library to Receive Facelift

Fundraiser scheduled to renovate Pasadena Central Library's south facade

By EDDIE RIVERA, Editor, Living Section

Published: Thursday, September 4, 2014 | 12:51 PM

The iconic Pasadena Public Library building needs a little help.

Pasadena Public Library Foundation Director Peter McAniff is a little more specific.

As he told Pasadena Now recently, "The library was built in 1927, and you know, we have nice weather, but it's not necessarily forgiving for buildings. It's very hot. It's a lot of sunshine and it's a lot of years. As a city property, there're lots of massive calls on its resources and so by the early 1980s, the Central Library building was in need of repair. "

But in 1980, there wasn't a lot of money to repair the Pasadena Public Library building, so a number of private citizens got together and created the Library Foundation, a public-private partnership with the city in which the Foundation raises private money and then uses it towards the maintenance of the Pasadena Central Library.

Toward that end, The Friends of the Pasadena Public Library and the Pasadena Public Library Foundation will co-host a cocktail party on September 14, in Central Library's Great Hall, 285 E. Walnut Street, to raise funds to restore the eye-catching "face" of the building, which has taken most of the heat, if you will, over the years.

That's the part that is most weathered," said McAniff. "The renovation will cost about $150,000."

According to McAniff, private funds will raise a net base of about $75,000, and the city will contribute the other $75,000.

For McAniff, the library is a huge part of his life.

"I grew up in Pasadena and I got a library card when I was 6 or 7 at the Central Library, which is really where I grew up, and my love for learning has been greatly facilitated by the Pasadena Public Library system. And so now is the opportunity to get back to this institution that has shaped me," he said.

Ninety years ago, ten architectural firms competed for the privilege of designing the library and the commission was awarded to the firm of Myron Hunt and H.C. Chambers. Construction began in 1925, the date inscribed over the front entrance. Dedicated two years later, the library now ranks on the National Register of Historic Places.

The last restoration took place between 1984 and 1990, funded in large measure by the Pasadena Public Library Foundation.

The fundraising gala will also highlight the year-long celebration of 130 Years of Reading in Pasadena.

The Friends of the Pasadena Public Library, founded in 1975, funds the library's programs, special services and cultural events. Pasadena Public Library Foundation, now an endowment fund of the Pasadena Community Foundation, was established 31 years ago to refurbish and maintain the beautiful and historic Central Library building.

The Pasadena Public Library Foundation has funded a number of library projects over the years, including the creation of an Internet Commons and purchase of 60 computers at Central Library for patrons to use as research tools and the installation of a new elevator, in conjunction with the Pasadena Community Foundation and the City of Pasadena.

“Each institution contributed $50,000, so the city was able to install a library elevator immediately providing access to all,” said McAniff.

As McAniff puts it succinctly, “The goal of the library as an institution of accessible learning doesn't change. The library, Pasadena Library Foundation, and The Friends of the Library work very hard to ensure that the historical goal of the library as a place of learning and opportunity for all is maintained for current and future generations.”

The Friends of the Pasadena Public Library and the Pasadena Public Library Foundation will co-host a cocktail party September 14, 5:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m., at Pasadena Central Library's Great Hall, 285 E. Walnut Street, Tickets for the event are $130 each and available for purchase through the Pasadena Community Foundation website; www.pasadenacf.org.

Expanding the Library's Walls

Friends of the Pasadena Public Library helps books reach out

From STAFF REPORTS

Published : Friday, September 5, 2014 | 6:38 PM

It takes more than a library to make a library truly work.

Besides the staff and employees there are a host of local organizations that help the library transcend its role in the community.

Enter The Pasadena Friends of the Library.

As President Joan Cathcart explained, the group works with the library in a host of ways to help expand its reach throughout the city.

“We have an organization with 18 directors. That’s everybody working,” said Cathcart, explaining the wide range of activities that the organization performs to raise money in support of the library’s efforts.

“The largest amount of money comes from our book sales, as patrons donate books to the Pasadena Central Library and then we turn around and sell them in a bookstore that is open from 11:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Monday thru Friday off the Eastern Patio at the Central Library, “Cathcart explained.

The group also holds a monthly book sale at the library on the second Saturday of each month from 9:00 a.m. to noon.

“It takes a lot of work,” said Cathcart, “We have a storage area in the basement of the library so we take the books in and out of there, and sort them weekly. And all our directors help with that. “

“Then we turn around and give some money that we raise back to the library,” Cathcart continued. Through 2014-2015, the group has pledged $69,500.

The group publishes a quarterly newsletter called The Library Insider. The newsletter features some information about the group’s activities, as well as articles about the books that are being read by various members of the community, like Mayor Bill Bogaard, for example.

Certainly there are more than enough programs which put to good use the money raised by the Friends.

“There is $25,000 to the Summer Reading Program,” Cathcart detailed, “and $10,000 to the teen program, and then this year we’re giving money towards creating a new presentation space on the 4th level of the library.

“We’re giving $6,000 for supplies, and then we’re giving $4,500 to the ‘One City One Story’ program, $1,000 to ‘ArtNight’ that happens once a year, and $5,000 to the Adult Speakers Program.”

“The Library is also celebrating “130 Years of Reading” and we are giving $3,000 for that, Cathcart added. “And we will also give $5,000 to support the Peek-a-book program located at every library site.”

Finally, the group has recently partnered with the Pasadena Public Library Foundation.

“Our mission is basically programming and services, while the library foundation’s mission is to help with the infrastructure and technology needs of the Central Library,” Cathcart explained. Both groups will be working together on the upcoming Library Day event.

Cocktail Fundraiser Set for Facade Restoration of Pasadena Central Library

From STAFF REPORTS

Published: Thursday, August 21, 2014 | 5:28 AM

To raise funds for the restoration of the Central Library's façade, the Pasadena Public Library Foundation and the Friends of the Pasadena Public Library will host a cocktail party in the library's Great Hall on Sunday, September 14, 5:00-7:00 p.m.

Organizers said the proceeds will be used to “restore the eye-catching ‘face’ of the building that overlooks Walnut Street and the historic civic center” and to “restore the façade to its former glory.”

Officials said the restoration is needed because the last restoration of the façade took place between 1984 and 1990, funded in large measure by the Pasadena Public Library Foundation.

Now the magnificent arched windows, stonework and exterior wall of the south façade are in critical need of restoration, repair and painting due to decades of sun exposure and general weathering, officials said.

Myron Hunt and H.C. Chambers designed the building 90 years ago, and began their construction in 1925. The library now ranks on the National Register of Historic Places.

The fundraising gala will highlight the year-long celebration of “130 Years of Reading in Pasadena.”

The Friends of the Pasadena Public Library, founded in 1975, funds the library’s programs, special services and cultural events. Meanwhile, the Pasadena Public Library Foundation, now an endowment fund of the Pasadena Community Foundation, was established 31 years ago to refurbish and maintain the beautiful and historic Central Library building.

Tickets for the event are $130 each and available for purchase through the Pasadena Community Foundation website <http://www.pasadenacf.org>. Tickets and donations benefiting the organization are tax-deductible.

The Pasadena Central Library is located at 285 E. Walnut St. For more information, contact Catherine Hany at (626) 744-4207 or chany@cityofpasadena.net.
